Most colleges in the United States offers students access to extra resources that can help them learn better. For example, most labs on campus have computers available. There is also books, magazines, newspapers, and videos to borrow from the library. Either faculty members or tutors often give workshops to further students’ learning. Guest speakers and special conferences enhances students’ awareness of issues as well. Counselors, make working along with teachers, also makes a big difference. A helpful environment, including people and facilities, greatly contribute to a student’s life.
